- (vi) By the words “ a player”, “ a participant”, both male and female competitors are meant. By the words “the I.C.C.D. World Champion”, they also apply to both events described in ART. III. 1. (b) unless otherwise specified as in ART. III. 3. (g) (ii),ART IV. 8 (a) and (b).

3. Tournament Rules

- (a) If the numbers of the participants are twelve or less than twelve, then the tournament will be played in 11 Rounds or less according to the number of participants and with participants meeting each other once.
- (b) If the number of the participants is 14 (the host country to provide another player if there are 13 participants), then the 13 Rounds all-play-all system will be used. Before the drawing of numbers allocated to participants, a draw is made from the 13 Rounds so that the named two Rounds are deleted to make way for the 11 Rounds to be played. If two players are from the same country, then they are asked to draw their own number first. Their pairing may be deleted as to which Round they would play against each other and thus delete that Round. The procedure as described is followed up by drawing one more Round to be deleted.
- (c) For 16 or more even numbered participants, the Swiss System for 11 Rounds is to be used and it is required that all participants be officially rated.

- (d) In single games, a victory is counted as 1 point, a draw as 0.5, and a defeat as 0 point. The results of the single games are added up. The player who obtains the highest number of points is the winner of the tournament. The sum of the points obtained determines the ranking of participants.
- (e) If participants gain the same number of points, the following factors, in the order given, shall be decided about their ranking with the exception of the case described in ART. III. 3. (i).

For the All-play-all system:

- (i) The better result according to the Sonneborn-Berger system which determines the rank of a player by the sum of all points calculated as follows: a won game is scored on the basis of number of normal points reached by the opponent, a drawn game on the basis of half the number of normal points reached by the opponent;
- (ii) The mutual results of the players who have gained the same number of points;
- (iii) The better results over all other players who have obtained more than 50% of the possible points;
- (iv) The drawing of lots.

For the Swiss system:

The sum of progressive scores is the method to be used for tie-break decisions. In this method the player's total scores at the end of each round are added together. The highest total wins.

If still tied, the first score is taken away, and so on until one player is left with a highest total, and wins.

- (f) If none of the criteria listed in ART. III 3. (e) produces a decision, the first place is awarded to the winner of a new match by the contestants; and so on until one of the contestants wins. This refers to deciding upon the winner, and in this case criterion (iv) of ART. III 3. (e) shall apply.
- (g) (i) The winner of the World Individuals Deaf Chess Championships for Men shall be awarded the title of “I.C.C.D. World Champion;”
- (ii) The winner of the World Individuals Deaf Chess Championships for Ladies shall be awarded the title of “I.C.C.D. World Ladies Champion”.
- (h) The title of “I.C.C.D. World Champion” is awarded by the I.C.C.D. only for the period prior to the next World Individuals Deaf Chess Championships. The period may not, however, exceed eight years, if the World Individuals Deaf Chess Championships is not held at the date provided for in the Regulations.
- (i) If the I.C.C.D. World Champion who won, the players are classed to equal points, then it shall be determined by the following:
 - a) The player winning the game outright;
 - b) If the game between them is drawn, then the decision is made via Article III, point 3 (e).”
- (j) Each player is obliged to play right through the tournament. Each player is forced by circumstances beyond his control to withdraw from the tournament, the I.C.C.D. Board shall take the necessary steps.

4. Detailed Tournament Rules

(a) The F.I.D.E. Laws of Chess must be strictly observed.

(b) Order of Play

In the all-play-all system, as prescribed in ART. III.3 (a) and (b), the order of play is so regulated that the competitions are played according to the international tables of rounds (Berger-Schurig).

In the Swiss system, as prescribed in ART. III.3 (c), the general pairing rules used in the Swiss system are applied.

Before the pairings are made for the first round, the list of participants is prepared according to their ratings and the players are given pairing numbers (for example, the player with the highest rating is given number 1 which is the highest pairing number).

The pairing numbers are then divided into two equal groups. The players in the top half are paired in consecutive order with those in the bottom half. The color to be given to the player having the highest pairing number is decided by drawing lots.

Then the odd-numbered players in the upper half of the pairing list have the same color as the player having the highest pairing number and even-numbered players in the upper half of the pairing list are given the other color.

Small changes may be made by the chief Arbiter in order to avoid pairing players from the same country-member.

(c) The official F.I.D.E. rate of play is 60 moves in 3 hours, the first 40 moves in 2 hours and then 20 moves in 1 hour.

If circumstances make it absolutely necessary, the chief Arbiter may make the necessary changes in the hours of play.

However, if before the last round there remain some adjourned games, these games must be finished before the last round commences. If there are several adjourned games belonging to preceding rounds, termination must be arranged in the ascending order of rounds unless there are obstacles of a practical nature.

Rates of play other than described above must first be approved by the I.C.C.D. Executive Board.

(d) At the commencement of the game the clocks are to show 4 o'clock.

As soon as the signal for the start of the game has been given the clock of the player who has the white pieces will be started by the player who has the black pieces. If the player who has the black pieces is not present, the Arbiter starts the clock of the one who has the white pieces.

The game is lost by the player who arrives at the chess board more than an hour late, for the beginning of the game. The time of delay is counted from the start of the game.

(e) Adjournment of a game

(i) In case a game is not finished at the elapse of time prescribed for play, the player whose turn it is shall write down his next move in complete notation on his score sheet, put his score sheet along with that of his adversary into an envelope provided by the Arbiter, seal the envelope and then stop his clock. After this, he shall hand the envelope to his adversary who will act as prescribed in ART. III. 4. (e) (ii) below. If the player makes the said move on the board he must write it down on his score sheet nevertheless.

(ii) The adversary of the player who has sealed his move shall inscribe on the envelope

1. the name of the player and the country he represents
2. the position at the moment of adjournment of the game
3. the time used by each player
4. the name of the player who has sealed his move and the number of the said move.
5. offer of a draw (using the symbol =), if it has been done before the adjournment of the game.
